One of the significant developments in 2022 is the use of artificial intelligence (A.I.) by employers when making employment-related decisions, and the attempts by states and the federal government to regulate the use of A.I. This special two-part webinar series will discuss what A.I. is (and what it is not), how employers have been using A.I., and the types of restrictions on the use of A.I. when it comes to hiring/firing decisions, discrimination claims, privacy and biometric issues, disability and accommodation requirements, and background checks.
