

Lifelong Love of Parkland Propels Litigation Attorney to City Commission Run

Monday, June 1, 2020

Simeon Brier was featured in Parkland Talk discussing how his lifelong love of Parkland has propelled him to run for city commission. “The way in which this city, the community, our children and our public servants (at every level) have come together over the last two years after facing a horrible tragedy (and now a global pandemic) has been inspiring,” said Simeon. He serves on the city’s Community Advisory Board, the board of the Parkland Chamber of Commerce, and he’s also the chairman of the Board of Directors for the SOS Children’s Villages-Florida, where foster children are cared for. Simeon said he has worked hard to make a difference for the city as a community leader and explains, “I am running for city commissioner to build on that work and preserve the special character of our city.”
