Rachel Welford will be the program co-chair for the ABA Forum on Air & Space Law's Annual Conference.

With the advent of the COVID-19 vaccine, the aviation and space industries are getting a glimpse of what the new landscape will look like post-pandemic. Airlines, airports, aerospace companies, and other industry players are charting their paths to recovery as air travel demand rebounds and businesses around the world gradually reopen. This year's conference will focus on that recovery – and, in the case of domestic U.S. air travel, a recent “resurgence.” It will also highlight industry and government efforts to ensure that this growth will be sustainable.
