

What to say if a job interviewer asks:

Wednesday, July 14, 2021

Michael Schmidt was quoted in Biz Instant discussing how employers should handle a job candidate asking about location preference in the interview. “You want to be asking applicants questions for legitimate business reasons and to communicate expectations and needs. But you also need to be careful that you’re not discriminating against individuals, and you’re not imposing requirements for the sake of imposing requirements when it’s not something your business needs,” said Michael.

To read more of this article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Labor & Employment