

Myriad Section 230 Bills Show Agreement Still Out Of Reach

Friday, October 16, 2020

Michael de Leeuw was quoted in a Law360 article discussing how a politically neutral proposal such as the Pact Act will likely get more traction than other bills that seek to impose stricter oversight of social media platforms. "Clear posting of moderation policies is going to be very important," Michael said. "You can't force companies to do things, but allowing them to remove things that are clearly unlawful and to adopt policies where broadly misleading content can be removed — I think those are fine goals."

To read the full article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Appellate & Supreme Court
- Commercial Litigation