

How To Beat The Legal Heat This Summer Internship Season

Monday, March 22, 2021

David Barron spoke to Law360 about the upcoming summer internship season and the legal challenges. Interns don't always have to be paid, but unpaid internship programs are fraught with wage and hour perils, said David. "From a legal standpoint, it's very difficult to have a lawful internship that's unpaid," he said.

To read more of this article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Labor & Employment