Milton Marquis will participate in a panel discussion at the 2025 Spring ABA Antitrust Meeting in Washington, D.C., April 2-4. The session, Novel Uses of Consumer Protection Authority, will focus on ways the FTC, CFPB and state AGs have used existing consumer protection authorities in novel ways to address policy priorities. Recent examples include targeting practices allegedly intended to manipulate and addict youth to social media, discriminatory and disparate impact, dark patterns, and junk fees. The panel will explore the goals and limits to these initiatives, and companies' compliance efforts in a shifting regulatory and enforcement landscape.
