Andrew focuses his practice on business litigation. He has experience handling litigation matters, including white-collar defense, internal investigations, and commercial litigation in federal and state court.

Before joining the firm, Andrew was an associate at a full-service firm in New York, where he practiced litigation, participating in complex white-collar and government investigations.

Andrew interned for the New York Civil Liberties Union during law school on its Voting Rights Project. He also interned for the Honorable Lorna Schofield of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York and the Honorable Claire Cecchi of the U.S. District Court for the District of New Jersey.

In 2022, Andrew earned his J.D. magna cum laude from Fordham University School of Law, where he was a member of the Fordham Urban Law Journal, a co-founder of the Voting Rights & Democracy Forum, and on the advisory board of the Voting Rights and Democracy Project. Andrew graduated from American University in 2017, where he studied political science with a concentration on American government.
