

Here's How Biden's Presidency May Already Have An Effect On Your Job

Wednesday, January 27, 2021

John Ho was quoted in the Huffington Post discussing President Biden's executive order that called for OSHA to review and update its COVID-19 workplace safety recommendations. John said he anticipates a marked change in how Biden's administration will approach workplace safety, with regulation coming first. "With Trump's administration, it was voluntary compliance first, then enforcement when necessary, and the last, which they didn't even do, was the regulation," he said.

To read more of this article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Labor & Employment