Monday, March 7, 2022

Ken Fisher, a member of Cozen O'Connor's Business Law Department, and Stuart Shorenstein, Managing Director of Cozen O'Connor New York Public Strategies, have been named to City & State New York's 2022 Law Power 100. This prestigious list recognizes "the legal professionals who aren't simply influential in their field, but powerful in New York's governmental landscape" and, among others, it "includes district attorneys, federal prosecutors, white-collar defense attorneys, public interest lawyers, law school deans and bar association leaders who have shaped New York politics and government." Ken, the list says, is "a go-to expert in real estate and land use in New York City" whose experience serving in the New York City Council "makes him a strong ally for clients with business before local government." Meanwhile, Stuart "heads up much of the firm's government relations efforts, helping companies, nonprofits, colleges and other clients advance their priorities on local, state and federal levels."
