

As businesses reopen, workers face a new challenge: getting in the door

Friday, July 24, 2020

Michael Schmidt was quoted in Newsday discussing COVID-19 screening for returning to work. Michael said screening practices inevitably will lead to claims by employees. Among the issues are whether companies are maintaining confidentiality and whether they are screening for issues that go beyond the specifications of the CDC and the state Department of Health. "You're already seeing hundreds of cases on employment issues around the country," he said.

To read more of this article, click here.

Related Practice Areas

- Labor & Employment